Unit Description

CESEM is a research unit dedicated to interdisciplinary studies on Music and its relations to other social and cultural fields. It brings together 84 researchers, 38 with PhD, nearly 35 with MD. Including the remaining postgraduate students and undergraduate collaborators, almost 100 people are involved in our activities.

The center is managed by a directive body of five Ph.Ds, elected by the General Assembly (formed by members with a Ph.D or a Master degree) which meets twice a year. The board of directors carries out the policies defined by the Scientific Committee, formed by all of CESEM's Ph.Ds, which meets every two months during the academic year. CESEM has constituted an external consulting body formed by senior international scholars.

CESEM's specialized library (c. 3500 volumes) is managed by one of our Ph.Ds. With CESEM's main rooms move to a newly recovered, more spacious building, dedicated to Research and Development, CESEM's library was also reinstalled in this new building , where it is accessible to scholars. It is now completely catalogued and available online.

CESEM has two laboratories: An electroacoustic laboratory (since 2008 in a 20 m² studio, fully operational only in 2009), another lab dedicated to Psychology of Music research, with special incidence in Music and Communication in Infancy (LAMCI) (installed in the above mentioned new building).

Additionally, the center employs four Research Fellows, one full-time support administrator and one part-time collaborator, and pays one IT external consultants, which assist the center in the setup and maintenance of its electronic databases.

Internal reorganization in 2007 led to the establishment of three research areas, each of them with an independent coordinator. In September 2009, responding to the increasing critical mass, it was decided to re-structure the research lines, creating five different groups: Studies in Early Music (coord, Manuel Pedro Ferreira), Music in the Modern Period (David Cranmer), Critical Theory and Communication (Mário Vieira de Carvalho), Education and Human Development (Helena Rodrigues), and Composition, Performance and Experimentation (Paulo Assis). Late in 2010, a proposal to split the larger group, Music in the Modern Period, was approved: one of the resulting research lines will keep the name, the new one will focus on "Luso-Brazilian Studies".

General Objectives

Following its internal reorganization in five research lines (since beginning 2009), CESEM has developed and aims to further develop its potential of interdisciplinary approaches to music and its relations to other social and cultural fields, also to profound the self-reflection and discussion on epistemological issues crossing the different disciplines: Philosophy, History, Sociology, Aesthetics, Psychology, Semiotics, Cognitive Studies, Gender Studies, Music Education, Music Analysis, Music Philology, Performance, Composition, Computer Music / Electroacoustics, "Artistic Research" – to quote main competences and interests of different members of the research team.

In order to achieve these main goals, special attention is given to: a) organization of international symposia; b) participation in international scientific and artistic events (increasing collaboration with foreign institutions and networks); c) publication of research outputs: papers in peer review periodicals, international and national books or chapters in collective books or proceedings; d) inventorying, cataloguing, digitalization of sources; e) critical editions of printed music and relevant texts on music; f) active participation in artistic productions and events, at the levels of scientific advising, artistic creation, or performance; g) discussion - crossing all research groups - around the emerging paradigm of «Artistic Research», including a debate on Theory of Interpretation and Performance; h) improvement of the cross-relations among Research, Training, Artistic Creation and Intervention in the Community; i) developing more and more the Luso-Brazilian cooperation at these different levels (notably through the nucleus "Caravelas"); j) increasing CESEM's participation in Ibero-American networks; k) developing CESEM's partnerships (contracts and other agreements) with public and private institutions in Portugal and abroad.

Main Achievements during the year of 2010

The different research lines and CESEM as a whole have significantly increased their activities and research outputs.

Total of publications/interventions (national and international): 372

Protocols allowing the joint publication of books on music were signed in 2010 with Casa da Música (Porto) and the Biblioteca Nacional de Portugal. A third protocol is being negotiated with Gulbenkian Foundation.

CESEM was engaged in reaching an agreement with INET and the APCM (Portuguese Musicological association) to allow a second series of Revista Portuguesa de Musicologia to be issued online twice a year, beginning in 2011. This is an important step towards a more intensive collaboration - having in view a future institutional association - between CESEM and INET, a strategic goal in order to optimize the resources and critical mass of both research centres.

Another step in this direction was the organization by CESEM in collaboration with INET of "Música em Contexto", a series of 16 lectures by invited international scholars, which took place regularly during the whole year, and aimed at enhancing interdisciplinary approaches to music.

The series of lectures by invited international scholars organized along the year in cooperation with INET had a strong interdisciplinary component. Nine of these sixteen lectures were proposed by CESEM.

Outreach activities during the year of 2010

A great number of lectures by invitation given in Portugal (60) were for a large public.

Great social impact for a large public, by reflecting in large measure research outputs, had also the more than 175 public performances or workshops given by CESEM's members. Examples of workshops led by CESEM members:

Workshops Sound=Space (for children with autism and cerebral paralysis) - RESEO: Conference on Opera, Dance and Disability. Casa da Música, Porto, April, 2010

Several CDs, didactic books and DVDs published by CESEM have also contributed to apply and disseminate research outputs.

Participation in the conception and on writing of educational texts included collaboration with Companhia de Música Teatral, Encyclopédia da Música com Bicho: Tomo V – Pinguim (livro e CD). Educational text: Helena Rodrigues; Performance in CD: Ana Paula Almeida & Helena Rodrigues. 2010

The broad divulgation of CESEM's scientific activity has taken place also through a great number of interviews in mass media, programme notes and press reviews or articles.

The cooperation in editorial projects with the outstanding concert house Casa da Música in Oporto and Biblioteca Nacional de Portugal should be also mentioned as examples of optimizing the immediate social impact of scientific research.

Another example is the cooperation with Centro Nacional de Cultura in the project "Reference Works of Portuguese Music", whose coordination and the most entries were elaborated by CESEM's team.

Objectives & Achievements

Objectives

The Group intends to establish a strong nucleus of research on Early Music in Portugal, attracting international acknowledgment and international researchers; work on Portuguese musical sources is seen as part of a larger horizon including Iberian and Latin-American music, and connections to southern and central Europe. The strategy involves presence in international fora, scientific publication and networking and bringing together the best foreign scholars and young students.

Objectives for the current individual project are as follows:

The global aim of the project is to understand better the various ways in which Portugal and its cultural and spiritual relations integrate and participate in European cultural dynamics through music, ceremonial and liturgy from the Middle Ages to the Early Modern Age. One of the most important questions concerning musical heritage in Portugal is the extent to which it was both dependent on and independent from traditions elsewhere in Europe. This project builds upon the results of former, yet incomplete fieldwork concerning the identification and digital reproduction of early musical MSS. The recovery and the beginning of a systematic codification and study of thousands of chant fragments as well as complete corpuses of chant in Portugal dating from c. 1100 onwards is exposing ways in which Portugal was the recipient of chant traditions developed in important monastic houses and areas in France – Cluny, Clairvaux and the Aquitanian region. One of the most significant collections of medieval music dating from the 13thc., the Cantigas de Santa María of Alfonso X, also demonstrates some links with melodic and rhythmic traditions found elsewhere. The recently created CSM database will be used to refine this knowledge. Isolated fragments of polyphony dating from the 15thc. that have been found in Portugal impress on us the extent to which – at least in more privileged circles – music associated with prestigious courts and musical centres in northern Europe and Spain was also known and imported. Inter-dynastic marriages at the Portuguese royal court (c.1390-1570) especially would have been by and large responsible for such repertorial transmissions and exchanges. On the other hand, a very large corpus of polyphonic sources copied at the royal monastery of Santa Cruz in Coimbra (also included in the digital database) gives us clear paradigms of compositional trends during the period c. 1520 to c. 1620. Study of the characteristics of 'Spanish court repertoires' which were evidently circulating from c. 1500 onwards will be traced in the work of Pedro de Escobar. Editions of his complete work and of Baena's Arte de Tanger (1540) are among the project's objectives.

Main Achievements

One Ph. D. diss. (by Pedro S. Silva) was presented and defended; one M.A. thesis (by D. A. Veiga) was defended. The group invited one foreign scholar (Maria Carmen Gomez Muntané, Univ. Autònoma de Barcelona) to present a talk at CESEM; promoted two public presentations by members (who gave other five invited talks in Portugal), and co-organized a national musicological conference and an international Summer course.

The main achievement of the current research project was the launch of the online prototype of the Portuguese Early Music Database. The project attracted two young scholars: Kate Helsen (Canada), who started her collaboration, and Elsa de Luca (Italy), who won a post-doc grant, starting in 2011.

In Portugal members edited the last issue of the Revista Portuguesa de Musicologia, authored one book, one DVD, one book chapter and seven papers in scientific journals, besides fourteen Encyclopaedia entries; also published one article and three chapters in books or Proceedings abroad, and three entries in the Oxford Dictionary of the Middle Ages. Seven performing editions (besides minor transcriptions) were also prepared, and 25 Early Music concerts were given by ensembles directed or participated by members.

Members participated in 12 international scientific events (including conferences in France, Ireland, England, Germany, Russia, Italy and Spain) and 4 national events, and were jury members of five Ph.D. dissertation defenses (one of them in Paris). Among the several invitations for individual talks abroad, one should mention one at All Souls College, Oxford.

Manuel Pedro Ferreira was elected a member of the Academia Europaea (Section A.5 - Musicology, History of Art and Architecture) and received a "honorary mention" prize in Medieval History for one of his 2009 books.

Publication of one more book on Early Music justified presence in mass media (3 Radio interviews on Antena 2, one long interview in Público)

Funding, source, dates

This research group has benefited in 2010 from the FCT's pluriannual funding of CESEM as a whole, from the Ciência programme (1 senior research fellow), 4 post-doctoral grants (FCT), 5 doctoral bursaries (FCT) and 1 research initiation bursary (FCT).

Four collaborative research projects hosted by CESEM and based in this research group have been in progress during the year – two for the whole year, two for part:

1. "The Teatro de São Carlos: performing arts in Portugal" (PTDC/EAT/70038/2006) – terminated October 2010. Total FCT funding 177,000.00 Euros, of which 53,100.00 Euros received in 2010.
2. "Marcos Portugal: his work and its dissemination" (PTDC/EAT-MMU/099243/2008) – begun January 2010. Total FCT funding 100,521.00 Euros, of which 20,104.20 Euros received in 2010.

4. "Música vocal luso-brasileira nos séculos XVIII e XIX" – bilateral project (CAPES/FCT) with the Universidade Estadual de Campinas (Unicamp), begun January 2010. Total FCT funding 10,000.00 Euros, of which 5,000.00 Euros received in 2010.

Objectives & Achievements

Objectives

This group includes researchers with very diverse interests, including a substantial proportion involved in artistic production.

The principal aims of the group are: 1) to conduct original research into European music history from the 18th century onwards, with particular emphasis on music in Portugal and countries with which it has had significant interchange; 2) to support graduate studies in music in Portugal, to disseminate knowledge on music, and to encourage the edition and recording of Portuguese music, and performance activity.

Areas of interest that we specifically aimed to explore in 2010 include: Musical edition of opera, issues of Patrimony (inventorying, cataloguing, digitalisation of sources), issues of Music and Identity under the liberal monarchy and the First Republic (music and politics, the nation in operatic representation, virtuosity, gender practices, music education). A further objective was work on 'occasional' vocal music of the ancien régime, Luso-Brazilian theatre music of the colonial period, issues in operatic performance (singers' biography, politics of operatic singing, cultures of staging) and the technological culture of music in European modernity.

Objectives for group projects were:

1. "The Teatro de São Carlos: Performing Arts in Portugal." The closing months of the project (to October 2010) were dedicated to finishing various tasks, particularly in relation to editing of scores, introduction of data relating to musical periodicals, iconography and the singer Tomás Alcaide in the project database, making the database available online, and completing work on spoken theatre at the S. Carlos up to 1818, on Mise en Scène and Dramaturgy at the S. Carlos in the 20th century. Our overall objective was to publicise our findings in a closing conference.
2. "Marcos Portugal: his work and its dissemination." In the first year we aimed principally to complete the edition of 1 opera for performance in England and begin work on 3 more. Another objective was to begin to inventory known sources for his operatic music and obtain copies of all libretto first editions. We aimed to begin public discussion of findings in a symposium.
3. "Teatro para Rir: Comédia Musical em teatros de língua portuguesa (1849-1900)." The main aim of the first three months of the project (beginning in October 2010) was to undertake a broad literature survey.
4. "Música vocal luso-brasileira nos séculos XVIII e XIX." We aimed to initiate contacts with our partner, Unicamp, to mark a presence at the annual conference of ANPPOM, at Florianópolis, Brazil, and to begin personal research projects within the scope of the project title.

Further objectives still were aimed particularly at increasing internationalisation, on the one hand, through a greater presence at international conferences, and, on the other through the network Caravelas -- Study Group for the History of Luso-Brazilian, organised from the present Research Group, through increasing membership and other initiatives.

The Future

The size of the group and the diversity of interests led to the division of this research group into 2 separate groups, a decision taken in October, and which will be reflected in future years. One group is dedicated to 19th-century Musical Culture, the other to Luso-Brazilian Studies. The level of activity in both groups is already considerable and during this year we have made strenuous efforts at greater internationalisation, which will be maintained. Particular objectives for the next few years, however, will be to raise the number of articles published in international peer-reviewed journals, as well as to publish more full-length books, internationally as well as nationally.

Main Achievements

All of the objectives set out for the group research projects were achieved, among which certain items merit specific mention. The conference "O Teatro de São Carlos e as Artes do Espectáculo em Portugal", took place at the TNSC, in collaboration with the Theatre, on 15-16 October. 12 papers were given by members of the project and others belonging to the present research group. In the Marcos Portugal project, La pazza giornata o sia il matrimonio di Figaro was successfully performed in England, and the symposium "Marcos Portugal: Transformações" took place on 11 December, with 4 papers followed by a screening of the La pazza giornata production. In the "Teatro para Rir" project as well as the literature survey, a seminar on the idea and practices of comedy was initiated. In the bilateral Luso-Brazilian project there were meetings of members of the two research teams in both Lisbon and Campinas, and 3 members of the CESEM team spoke at the ANPPOM conference. Caravelas held its annual symposium on 24 November, more than doubled its membership, currently 59 (http://www.caravelas.com.pt/quem_somos.htm), established protocols with 3 Brazilian institutions, continued to produce its quarterly Newsletter and initiated work on its Biographical Dictionary, coordinated by Alberto Pacheco. Paulo Esteireiro organised a regional conference on Artistic Education in Funchal on 14-15 September.

In other respects too output has been considerable. 1 book was published nationally, 4 publications appeared in international peer-reviewed journals, 2 in national; 6 essays were published in international proceedings, 8 in national; electronic publications related to Caravelas: 4 Newsletters and 21 biographical dictionary entries. Members contributed 14 entries in the Enciclopédia de Música em Portugal no Século XX. As well as 1 commercial musical edition, the group produced non-commercial editions of 5 operas or other dramatic works, 2 overtures and a sonata.

PhD thesis: 4. Participations in international conferences by invitation (including 1 key-note speaker): 8. In national conferences: 30. In international conferences (calls for papers): 19.. Gabriela Cruz collaborated in an ESF funded European Research Network on Music in European Cities (1816-1848).

Members were involved as external evaluators in a variety of international and national contexts. Artistic production is also an important part of this Research Group's output. There were at least 102 participations in concerts.

Outreach was also achieved in other ways. 1 programme note was published internationally, 3 nationally; 4 magazine articles nationally. Talks to general public were given in Portugal and in Spain, USA and Brazil. Radio broadcasts were given in Portugal and in Romania. Workshops (teacher training): 1. Online concert reviews also contributed to dissemination of activities.

1 Visiting PhD researcher (from Univ of Granada, Spain) and 1 post-doctoral researcher (from Univ Federal da Bahia, Brazil) integrated the team.

Internationalization

Internationalisation is a particular feature of this research group, owing to the nationality and training of some of its members, as well as the particular emphasis given to Luso-Brazilian studies. This can be demonstrated through various examples:

1. Bi-lateral research project "Música vocal luso-brasileira nos séculos XVIII e XIX", with the Universidade Estadual de Campinas (Unicamp), Brasil, with financing from the FCT and CAPES (in Brazil).
2. Participation in international conferences: a) 8 by invitation, in Spain, the U.K., France, Canada and Brazil; b) 19 in response to calls for papers, in Spain, Italy, Hungary, the U.K. and Brazil.
3. 1 course given in São Paulo, Brazil.
4. Talks given in Spain and Brazil.
5. Consultancy, committee and board membership, e.g.
 - a. Marco Brescia is consultant for restoration of an organ in Diamantina, Brazil.
 - b. Gabriela Cruz is involved in the ESF-funded European Research Network on Music in European Cities (1816-1848), is a board member of the AMS Robert M. Stevenson Award for Outstanding Research in Iberian Music and peer reviewer for the periodicals 19th-century Music, Cambridge Opera Review and Latin American Review.
 - c. Luisa Cymbron is Member of International Advisory Board of the Journal of the Royal Musical Association.
 - d. Alberto Pacheco is peer reviewer for Revista do Conservatório de Música da Universidade Federal de Pelotas (Brazil) and also peer reviewed for the annual ANPPOM Congress, Brazil.
 - e. David Cranmer peer reviewed for two conferences in Brazil and was external examiner for a Brazilian thesis at King's College, London.
6. The Marcos Portugal project provided the full score, vocal score and parts for the production of La pazza giornata o sia il matrimonio di Figaro in the U.K.
7. Hosting of the post-doctoral research of Pablo Sotuyo Blanco (Universidade Federal da Bahia, Brazil) and the doctoral research of Juan Pablo Pacheco (Universidade de Granada), supervised by David Cranmer.
